Another word or two and we have finished our advice to our friends and patrons for this week.

The manager avails himself of answering, through the press, the many questions which have been asked, if he is ourselved with the reopening of the Old Chatham theatre. The advertisement announces that it will be opened by two well known managers, consequently many suppose that he is one of them. He is happy to say that he has no connection at all with that antiquated specimen of artific curre. "Lo, how the mighty are fallen!" From Broadway to Chatham street—what a space. From "mirrored walls" to brick partitions; reminding one of the expressive lines—
